The Cash and Carry Grabateria

We insist that St. Johns is getting Groceries at more advantageous prices than any other locality in Portland. The principal reason is that the cut prices have produced a volume of sales that formerly went to the City Stores. Now that volume is assured there is no good reason that these prices should not continue.

If there are any Cash Groceries in St. Johns profiteering it is without our knowledge. The system was originated not by us but by our predecessor and we are developing and continuing the process.

We know we buy right; we sell for volume and not for big profit on any item.

Here are some of the prices that remain until further notice.

Soda Crackers per lb. 18c
Graham Crackers per lb. 20c
Puree Tomatoes 2 cans 25c
Schillings Best B Powder 8 oz. 25c
" " " " 16 oz. 50c

A large stock of Jellies, Jams and Preserves, Syrups and Molasses, the standard packs. Jellies and Jam in bulk at saving prices.

ROOT'S THALO-MINT

For Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Nausea, Gastritis, Auto-intoxication

In offering Root's Thalo-mint as a medicine for the above diseases we feel that we are placing in the hands of the customer a preparation which can be safely used at all times and occasions when there is distress resulting from a deranged stomach. Many of the chronic ills from which we suffer originate in excessive acid condition of the system, beginning with the mouth and extending clear through the digestive tract. In Root's Thalo-mint will be found an agreeable and effective Aromatic, Antiacid and Eliminator, which, on account of its delicious flavor, will be widely acceptable for use from infancy to old age.

What Saving Means

How many people helped get your breakfast this morning?

Not to mention the wife or mother who cooked it, you think at once of the farmer who raised the wheat, the miller who ground the flour, the planter who grew the coffee, the sailors and railroad men who carried the food, the grocer who brought it to your door.

You think again of the men who made the farmer's plow, who built the ships and laid the rails, and made the tools that made the tools—until it seems as though all the world had been working for the last hundred years to get your breakfast ready this morning.

What interests us at this minute is this: Savings did it all.

Savings built the railroads and the ships and hired the men who made the tools. Savings sent the ship on its long voyage and kept the wheat for months in storage.

Savings set the grocer up in business and put the plow in the farmer's hands.

All the wealth in the world began with somebody's savings. All that we call civilization was planted and watered by savings.

Until men learned to save they were savages, clad in skins and living on what they could kill or wearing fig leaves and living on fruit in the tropics. It was when they began to have something ahead that they started to be better than savages.

When you turn on the electric light or pick up the telephone or start a new record on the phonograph, it is not only somebody's work yesterday or last year that you are using—it is last year's work, built on the work of the preceding generation, built on the work of a hundred years ago, built on the work of men who lived before America was discovered, before Rome and Egypt and Babylon.

For the man who made the electric light could not have done it without the steam engine, and the man who made the steam engine could not have done it without the forge, and the man who first forged iron was living on food raised with the help of wooden plows.

But, in every case, the accumulation of wealth began with somebody's saving—getting a little ahead as a start for going further ahead.

Today the only way we can get ahead—any of us or all us together—is by saving.

If we were to build a railroad, we should have to furnish a living to the men who dig the ore and make the steel, and all the others who work on track or equipment.

Their living is paid to them as wages, but what those workers really get is food and clothing and other goods that somebody has saved. So when we save, we do something besides get ahead in the world on our own account. We set other people to work making things to shove this world a little further ahead. Whatever we save in one way or another is mingled with the general prosperity fund with which all the world advances.

Now, five dollars doesn't seem very much with which to make the world move faster, and a quarter looks foolish.

But all the wealth in the world is founded on savings—savings much less than a quarter—savings of pennies and farthings and sons. And every quarter and every penny and every farthing is made of human strength.
